Born in 1973 in Bad Sobernheim, Germany, Carsten Ebbinghaus is tenor horn and baritone player in the Siegburg Army Music Corps, formerly called the Stabs Music Corps. The Siegburg Music Corps is a concert orchestra representing military forces both national and international.

Career Development

Carsten Ebbinghaus studied with Professor Eckhard Treichel and Siegfried Müller at the Robert Schumann College in Düsseldorf. As a very versatile musician, Carsten Ebbinghaus can be found with his tenor horn in many different ensembles and performing groups crossing many varied genres and performance styles. To name a few, he is member of the "Egerländer Musicians" and is also engaged in numerous television and radio appearances as well as being sought out as lecturer and clinician for low brass workshops. Several recording engagements throughout the last years serve to round out his credentials.

Instrument

As member of the Siegburg Army Music Corps, Carsten Ebbinghaus plays a Miraphone model 47WL tenor horn as well as a Miraphone model 54L "Edition" baritone.
